Bruce spent 40 years in the IT industry working at IBM, DEC, and 3Com, holding positions in every sphere of operations ranging from sales, marketing, R&D, manufacturing, business development and strategy, both in the US and overseas. He retired as CEO of 3Com, a $6 billion global networking company in 2003 and since then has served on the board of directors of Time Warner Telecom, IDEXX Laboratories, Ciena Corporation, and AMD where he was Chairman of the Board for 14 years.

According to Bruce: Having a BA in Political Science from Penn State means that everything I learned about business was “on the job”. I have a general knowledge just about everything and am an expert on almost nothing. If there was a “secret to my success” it was to keep a sense of humor, have a backup plan, and remember that the game is over when you run out of cash!
